JACK KNIGHT AIR LABEL NEWS

ALL-AMERICAN AIRWAYS, INC.

By George Myall

Some years ago Dr. L.S. Adams and Dr. G.L. Cabot invented a device which would permit mail bags to be snatched from the ground by a plane in flight. Their invention came to the attention of Richard du Pont who formed All-American Aviation Inc. in 1937 to perfect the "Air Pick-Up" method.

During May 1939 All-American received a contract from the Post Office Department to operate 1,500 miles of routes radiating from Pittsburgh, Penn.

In the beginning there were about 50 non-stop pick-up and delivery points plus several major air terminals where AAA planes landed to transfer mail to other airlines.

Along the line's routes many communities built airports and in March 1949 AAA changed over to conventional airline operation with DC-3 transports. After the change, fewer towns had direct air mail delivery, but the remainder had passenger service too, for the first time.

Below are shown some of the company's air labels.

The arrow shape air mail label was issued as two major types; with different cloud formations in the center. A rectangular air mail label was also issued, altho not shown.

The line's express label issued for pick-up service was round, and when passenger service began, a rectangular baggage label was issued.
